BREAKING GROUND: NEW CENTRAL DINING HALL

A rendering of the new Central Dining Hall.

This spring, Auburn is set to start construction on a 48,000-square-foot, three-story dining hall. This dining hall, which is set to be completed in the fall of 2020, is being built in conjunction with a 151,000- square-foot academic classroom and laboratory complex, or ACLC. The $26 million dining hall facility will include 800 seats, six food stations, two commercial dining venues and four meeting spaces. The dining hall and the ACLC will be located where Parker Hall and Allison Laboratory currently stand.

Freshman Will Mostellar says he is excited about the prospect of new dining options on campus. "Food is a big priority of mine, so hearing about new restaurants coming to campus is pretty neat," says Mostellar. "I love that the new dining hall will be near the science buildings, because I spend a lot of time on that side of campus."

A video detailing the ACLC/Central Dining Hall project can be viewed here.
